

Christopher M. Whaley (WHALE-Y), Ph.D., Professor, RAND Pardee Graduate School; Health Economist at the RAND Corporation.

Chris is a widely published researcher and health economist. Chris is a leading authority on health care price transparency as well as how to better align payment incentives to control health care costs. He regularly works with the Congressional Budget Office and other research entities that analyze health care price transparency issues. He will provide policy expertise on health care price transparency based on his extensive research.

